DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 7 and 8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claims contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. Claims 7 and 8 specify the optical limitation means "changes the optical path of the light" and "limits light that is reflected". These limitations are found within Embodiment 3 of the specification (page 12, line 11 to page 13, line 8). The specification does not enable one skilled in the art to make such modifications to the optical limitation means. No details are provided for these structural changes, or for the composition or operation of the "movable light shielding plate", "mechanism for moving the light shielding plate", "movable reflecting plate", and "mechanism for moving a movable reflecting plate". Additionally, there exists no Figure(s) containing the aforementioned features.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 2836

Claims 1 and 3-6 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shin (US 5,078,476).

Shin discloses a use detection means (pulse generating member) putting out a use detection signal (pulse signal) when a display means is placed in a use state (there is a video signal). An optical limitation means (backlight power controller) limits light emitted out of a lighting means (backlight) incident upon a screen of the display means (liquid crystal display) according to the use detection signal.

With regard to claim 3, Shin discusses as prior art backlight apparatuses that turn on with no regard to the existence of a video signal. As such, when an LCD TV is turned on, the pulse generating member will turn on the backlight.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shin and Kurzman (US 5,057,977).

Shin discloses a backlight control system as above, but does not teach that the backlight may turn on when the "display means is pulled out from an accommodating means". Kurzman teaches a pull-out lighted display such that a light source associated with a display illuminates when the display is pulled out of a housing. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine the teachings of Shin and Kurzman to further power consumption by preventing backlighting means if either a display has no video input or is not placed in a viewable position.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Saito (US 6,404,145) discloses a backlight controlled to be off during a synchronization period. Sugiyama (US 6,817,310) and Schmitt (US 6,759,761) disclose illumination control systems in vehicles.
